The Real Danger

from heart disease is not the possibility of a sudden death, for they are comparatively few; but following in the wake of this dread disease comes a general breaking down of every organ of the body. Circulation is retarded; digestion is deranged; the blood is contaminated, the nerves weakened and the brain clouded. If your heart is affected begin at once to guard against these dangers. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, has rescued thousands who were given up to die, and it will help you, too, if you try it.

"For several years I was troubled with nervousness, sleepless, palpita-tion of the heart, short of breath, smothering spells and pain in chest, back, left side and arm. I was so very bad that I remained in my bed the whole of one summer. Was the whole of one summer. Was treated by three physicians, but de-rived no benefit. Finally I saw a paper advertising Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and Restorative Nervine. I began their use and was so greatly benefited that I am now doing my own housework and enjoy excellent health." Envoys Received Warm Welcome to New York.

WILL APPEAL TO M'KINLEY.

If He Refuses to Act In Behalf of the South African Republics, They Will Try to Arouse Sentiment Enough to Force Him to Intervene.

NEW YORK, May 16.—The steamship Maasdam, with the peace envoys from the South African republic arrived at this port after a voyage of about 12 days from Rotterdam. The envoys, Abraham Fischer, J. M. A. Wolmarans and C. H. Wessels, were met by a committee which went down the bay to greet them, and later were welcomed by a larger body of Boer sympathizers gathered on the pfer at Hoboken, where the Maasdam docked. The mayor of that city extended a welcome to them, and the party then took carriages for the Hotel Manhattan, where the envoys will lodge during their stay in this city.

A sub-committee appointed to go down the bay embarked on the revenue cutter Hudson, and met the Maasdam at quarantine. On the arrival of the ship there were introductions all around, and then ex-Judge Van Hoesen recited an address of welcome. Mr. Fischer responded to Judge Van Hoesen, saying: "I thank you most heartily for this welcome which you have just extended to us. The warmth of a welcome does not lie in the length of words used, but in deeds. We believe that the American people will also extend to us a most hearty welcome. For ours is a cause that is dear to their hearts. We are fighting for our country. As soon as they come to understand our cause, they will, I believe, echo the welcome you have just given us."

The Maasdam was saluted by harbor shipping on her way up, while those on board fraternized in unofficial ways. When the ship arrived at Hoboken the pier was crowded with men and women waving the Stars and Stripes and the colors of the South African republics. A brass band played patriotic airs from the pier head, and as the big ship was being warped into her dock the crowd shouted greetings to the envoys. After the Maasdam swung in at her dock the three envoys were the first to leave the ship. As they came down the gangway the band on the pier struck up the Boer national hymn, the crowd on the dock cheered and the vessels nearby tooted a welcome to the delegates.

The mayor of Hoboken delivered an address of welcome and tendered the visitors the free dom of the city.

Chairman Fischer, of the delegation, replied on behalf of the envoys. The Boer delegates were then introduced to the Hoboken committee and to the committee of 15 from New York, which was a part of the committee of 100 that was waiting at the Bar clay street ferry to greet the envoys. Then the delegates were escorted to carriages at the end There a procession was formed headed by a band of music. The procession passed through Washington street, past the city hall, to the Barclay street ferry, where the envoys were taken in charge by the committee of 100, and the whole party crossed the ferry to New York, where the envoys were es corted to the Hotel Manhattan. Along the route, from the Holland-American line dock to the ferry, there were crowds, who gave an en thusiastic welcome to the envoys of the South African republics.

The envoys were eager to hear the latest news of the war. When told of the reverse to their army and the advances made by Lore Roberts, they merely shrugged their should ders. "Such news," said Mr. Fischer, "does no disconcert us in the least.

"We read these dispatches between the lines Besides, what does one or a dozen reverse mean to us? We never propose to stop fight ing until we have gained what we are fighting for—our independence.'

The delegates were reticent concerning their

"We cannot say anything which may hinde our cause. We should like to have the government arbitrate with England, and undoubted ly we shall go to Washington and try to have an audience with President McKinley. If we cannot induce the government to do what we like we shall try to arouse the people so that they will compel the government to recognize us in that way."

Mr. Fischer said their future plans were un decided and that they would be largely guided by events as they happened. As it is, the reception committee have received invitation from the mayors of 66 towns and cities in the United States, and it is probable that they will visit many of the places before sailing again for the continent.

When asked as to the truth of the report that some of the Red Cross men were fighting in the Boer army, Mr. Fischer said: "Of this I know nothing, though some hav joined our forces when they know the truth. Some attaches who have gone down there to see us fight, when they saw us fight and know the reasons for the war have said to us: "Give us guns, for we want to fight with you."

WARNED BY AGUINALDO.

Otis Sends Sample of a Letter He Sen to Friends, Previous to Breaking Out of Hostilities.

WASHINGTON, May 16.-The president sent to the senate a letter from General Otis, transmitting a translation of a letter written by Aguinaldo to a friend in Manila, warning him to leave that city. Aguinaldo's letter is dated Malolos, January 7, 1899, and is addressed to Senor Ponito Legardo. In it Aguinaldo

"I beg you to leave Manila with your family and come here to Malolos, but not because I wish to frighten you. I merely wish to warn you for your satisfaction, although it is not yet the day or the week."

In his communication of transmittal General Otis said:

"The letter is forwarded to meet still further the absurd charge that the American authorities in Manila inaugurated the war." General Otis also states that this letter is one of a number written by Aguinaldo to his friends in Manila, warning them to leave the city for their safety. He adds that many families left the city in consequence of these warnings.

The Inter-State Standing.

Resigned His Seat, to the Senate's Surprise.

THEN APPOINTED TO THE PLACE.

Acting Governor Sprigg Named Him to Fill the Vacancy Thus Created-Clark's Speech In the Senate Apparently Gained Him Much Sympathy.

HELENA, Mont., May 16. - Acting Governor Spriggs appointed W. A. Clark, of Butte, United States senator, to serve until the next legislature shall elect his suchessor. Senator Clark's resignation was filed with the governor and later he was appointed by Governor Spriggs to succeed himself.

Governor Spriggs has all along been a friend of Senator Clark, during his candidacy for the senatorship and since, although he preserved the utmost impartiality in his office as lieutenant governor and president of the senate during the senatorial campaign. Governor Smith, a partisan of the Daly people, left the state two weeks ago for California, to attend to some mining cases in which he is retained as attorney. At that time there was no thought of Sen ator Clark resigning.

The resignation filed came as a surprise to the people of the state, who had no inkling of the coup prepared. During the day Governor Spriggs received a great many telegrams from all over the state urging him to appoint Senator Clark, alleging that he was the real choice of a large majority of the Democrats and a large proportion of Republicans, as well.

Governor Spriggs was besieged by in dividuals and by delegations friendly and hostile to Mr. Clark.

ARRAIGNED BY CLARK.

He Sharply Condemned Elections Committee's Action, In His Speech In the Senate,

WASHINGTON, May 16 .- Mr. Clark, of Montana, fairly swept the senate with the governor of Montana.

Mr. Chandler, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, had named he would call up for consideration the resolution unanimously reported from the committee declaring Mr. Clark not to be entitled to his seat in the senate. A spirited contest over the resolution was expected. Every senator in the city was at his desk.

He desired, he said, in a low, tense voice, to address the senate on a question of privilege personal to him-

His address was a sharp arraignment of the committee's action and report, an analytical discussion of the evidence adduced at the investigation, an explanation of political and business affairs in Montana, and a bitter excorciation of Marcus Daly and his friends.

As Mr. Clark adverted to his desire to hand down to his children a name untarnished even by the breath of disgrace, tears welled to his eyes and he trembled with emotion. He almost broke down. Then, bracing himself, he read the letter he had sent to the governor of Montana, tendering his resignation. At the conclusion of the speech, Mr. Clark became the center of a group of senators, all desirous of pressing his

Today marks the formal transfer of the three Dillonvale mines of the Wheeling & Lake Erie and Pittsburg coal companies to M. A. Hanna. With the transfer Superintendent Roby severs his connection with the mines. Rumor has it that he is to be succeeded by a relative of Mr. Hanna. The mines are lying idle today while affairs are being put into shape according to the ideas of their new owner. The transfer is one of the utmost importance. The Dillonvale mines are three in number, and are regarded as among the richest in the state. CHAPTER IV. IN WHICH THE CATTLE ARE STAMPEDED BY LORENA'S GANG. I had not an idea as to Spider's probable whereabouts. The desert was so very large and Spider so very minute a speck upon its surface that it struck me after we had started out that our quest was a singularly hopeless one Lee. however, differed from me.

"I don't see no trouble in knowin where ter go," he said. "Pug Hollis, he'll be prutty sure ter strike to'rds Agua Caliente, an Spider'll sure be in his wake. All we got ter do is ter go ter Agua Caliente, too; that's all. If anything's wrong an that kid's alive, he'll be makin some noise er other ter let us know. He's a star at makin a noise, Spider is. It's right in his line."

By this time we were well away from the camp, out of sight of the fire. But for the pole star that hung burning brightly over our heads I would not have had the faintest notion of the direction in which we were going But Lee, with the plainsman's unerring instinct, loped steadily along without ever raising his eyes. Lee was not a talkative person. The only sound that broke the oppressive stillness was the dismal yelp of a distant coyote, the smothered pad of the hoofs of our mounts as they fell on the soft sand and the regular click of the spur chains against our heavy wooden stirrups. Only once did Lee speak.

"Moon's comin up See? That's fine C'n tell what we're doin now." He pointed to a silvery sheen on the dark blue horizon, into which a few minutes later the full moon climbed, streaking the rolling surface of the desert with bright light and blackest shadow and silvering the stately forms of the tree cactus that studded the desert thickly A faint white line a mile ahead marked the course of a trail, toward which, by tacit consent, we turned our horses.

Suddenly Lee held up his hand as a signal that I should listen At first I could hear nothing. Then, sounding faint in the distance, there came three pops of a pistol.

"That's him—somebody what wants help, anyhow," called Lee "Over beyon' the rise, thar, they are We c'n see from the top. Le's hustle-quick!' Putting spurs to our horses, we soon were climbing a long, stony ridge that for miles divided the plain, concealing one half from the other.

Our horses stopped of their own accord as they reached the top. At first we could see nothing. Then my attention was attracted by a moving blot near the edge of the black shadow thrown by the ridge. As we looked the' blot passed out of the shadow and was at once defined as a bunch of cattle driven by three borsemen toward Agna could not tell at that distance, but they were not of our force, and one of them. from the peaked crown of his hat, was the cattle rapidly. One of the men stopped, and, turning, looked intently in the direction from which he had come. One of his companions came back and joined him. Then, after a moment, they both wheeled and galloped back to the herd, where the third man seemed anxiously to await them. Evidently the three were uneasy about something.

"They think somebody is a-follering 'em," said Lee softly in my ear They were not far from the truth if they did thinkso. A horseman emerged from the shadow, and the brilliant moonlight fell on the diminutive form and bright, new chaps of Spider.

The men saw Spider nearly as soon as I. Two of them at once pulled up their horses and stopped, evidently intending to bar the way. Spider stopped also. The men rode on, and Spider followed, preserving his distance unchanged They repeated this maneuver two or three times until at last the man with the Mexican hat lost his temper. He turned suddenly and darted after Spider

Firing three quick shots at his pursuer, Spider whirled about, and, with a yell of delight, vanished into the shadow, disappearing as completely as though the earth bad swallowed him. getting closer to an adversary who, unseen himself, can still see, the Mexican turned his horse toward the herd. Emerging once more from the shadow.

Just what Spider was trying to do I did not know. It was plain, however, that he was in some need of assistance. as there were three men opposed to him. I was about to start at full speed down "Ready?" he asked. I was quite as ready as I was likely to be, but he waitthe neck of his horse, he sent home his light, yelling like an Indian and pumping his repeating rifle with both hands as he went As we came Spider swerved his horse and drew his pistol. Then he recognized us.

"Hooray!" he yelled at the top of his shrill voice. "I knowed you'd come. We got 'em! Whoop! Yip, yip, yip! Come on! I ben a-tollerin them thieves all night."

Lee and I were riding side by side. Spider was some little distance ahead, shouting these remarks over his shoul- ance. der. He intended to stay ahead, too, for, ride as we might, neither Lee nor I could catch him. The three men who were ariving our cattle did not wait for us. Firing an ineffective shot or two they turned to one side and vanished in the shadow of the hill. Spider turned his hoise in pursuit.

"Come back!" called Lee "Come back here, you kid! You crazy?" Spider paid no attention whatever, but rode on at the best speed his pony could show "Come back, I say, or I'll rope your pony an throw him!" shouted Lee again "Have ter get within cast first, an you can't do it," returned Spider defiantly What he said was quite true. We were losing ground at every stride. We were well into the shadow now. "Come back!" I called in despair. 'Will you obey orders or not?" Spider stopped instantly 'Course, if it's an order it goes," he eaid. "But what d'you wanter pull up fer when we jus' got er chance ter get them threves?" Lee had no words to waste at the time He took Spider by the collar of his flannel shirt, lifted him half out of his saddle, shook him soundly, cuffed his ears and then returned him, with a thump, to his seat. "S'pose you wanter get er hole shot in your fool little hide jus' because you think it's smart," said Lee, when he had completed these operations to his satisfaction "You couldn't tell where them rustlers was a-waitin fer you in the dark there. Now get them cattle movin fer home er I'll take off yer chaps an spank you with 'em." To my great surprise Spider took these corrections and cantered away to obey his orders without a word. But, then, Lee had always been very good to Spider "S'pose I reelly oughter not a shook 'im so," the cowboy went on regretfullet 'im get so uppity, though Ther wouldn' be no livin in the same camp with 'im. But he scared me, that's a fact. That's reelly why I thumped 'im. hurt, an he was fixin ter get hurt the very best he knowed. Here he comes,

"Them rustlers was a-waitin fer me, was they?" called Spider as soon as he got close enough. "Well, jus' you look over there once." He pointed to a moonlit space between two deep shadows nearly a mile away. Three men on horseback were crossing it rapidly, going in the direction of Agua Caliente There was no doubt about their being the thieves. No other men would have been likely to be in that deserted place at such a time, or, if they had been, they would have shown themselves before when Spider was firing distress

"Do you suppose that those fellows will go after more men and then come down on us?" I asked Lee as Spider re-

"Nope," replied the cowboy. "They can't afford ter take no chances, er they'd 'a' staid an fought it out. It ain't no joke fer a man ter get ketched liftin cattle roun here. You c'n raise the country ter go after 'im, an if be's caught he don't get ter jail alive. Them fellers was gonter take these here cattle across the line into Mexico-it ain't more'n 20 miles from Agua Calientean sell 'em there. Better get them cattle over the divide an movin to'rds home, though, as soon as we kin. It's mos' sun up now."

The cattle, tired and thirsty, started willingly enough toward our camp by the river, but they moved very slowly, after the manner of cattle. We had our hands full in hurrying them, all three

As Lee had said, it was nearly sunrise. The cattle had hardly crossed the low ridge when the summits of the hills were reddened by the first beams of the sun that shot up over the level edge of the desert. This reminded me of the foreman's threat concerning Agua Caliente and its inhabitants. I had forgotten it until then.

"How far do you think we are from the camp?" I asked Lee

"Our camp? Ten er 'leven miles More maybe," he replied

"We can't get there in an hour, then," I said. "Perhaps I had better. send Spider on ahead to tell them we're all right."

Lee objected. He could see no reason why we should send any one away There were only three of us as it was. and there was plenty of work to keep us all busy. Evidently he had not heard what the foreman had said, so I told him. It did not seem to alter his opinion, however. Spider threw up his hat and shouted. The hat fell beyond his reach, but he picked it up without dismounting and evinced a decided inclination to depart immediately for Agua Caliente. I sternly restrained him.

Once we're on the level, then man says he'll do a thing, that's the thing he does every trip," commented Lee, grinning delightedly "But we're sure to meet up with the boys-we're When we reached the plain, there was right in their track." he added. with a

The foreman was even better than his word. Hardly had Lee finished speaking when a cloud of dust that had been rapidly moving over the desert proved ed for no reply. Dropping the reins on to be the wake that followed our men. Except Hollis, every one of them was spurs and dashed out into the moon- there, even the Ballet Girl. He had screwed the spike that decorated the end of his artificial leg into the foot rest of his wooden stirrup and was riding straight and well, his long gray beard blowing back over his shoulder. The heavy pistol that always hung in his belt was re-enforced by another, and across his saddle a rifle was balanced.

While the boys noisily greeted Lee and Spider the foreman rode directly up to me and without preamble began to explain the suddenness of his appear-

"You see, I didn' say I wouldn' start off before the time I set," said he. "I didn' mean ter, though, when you left, but the boys they got dead anxious. Ther's been a lot er them rustlers f'om Agna Caliente hangin roun the place, an we all thought you mighter stacked up agains' some trouble. So the boys got kinder scared up for you. Why, even the Bally Gurl, he starts out an gives me fits fer lettin you go without the lot of us back er you. He saddles up a horse an gets out his guns an swears he'll lead the boys himself if I don't start out. He's dead game, the Bally of his horse, for in quicker time than Gurl is, an I tell you these boys is a mighty good lot er boys.

"But I told you particularly that you weren't to attack Agua Caliente," said I reproachfully "You weren't going to do that, were you?" The foreman looked somewhat dubious.

"Dunno," he said candidly. "The boys was kinder mad, an if we hadn't found you I reckon they'd 'a' give Agua Caliente a little shake up, whether I'd let 'em or not Min'," he added, with his usual scrupulous regard for . the truth, "I didn't say I wouldn't er let 'em. Where's Hollis?'

I had no idea where Hollis was: was about to ask the same question myself. The foreman went about among the men, making inquiries, but no one had seen him or apparently felt much troubled about his absence.

"He drawed all the pay that was a-comin to him, didn t he?" asked one of the men. "Well, then, he jus' took an skipped over to Lorena an his gang, where he belongs; that's all." That seemed to be the general opinion, and there was a decided feeling of relief that he was no longer with us.

The cattle moved along merrily, each man doing his best to hurry them. Never before had I imagined that a wooden leg could be used to advantage ly when Spider had left. "I couldn't | in driving cattle; but, when wielded by the Ballet Girl, I found that it had a wonderfully accelerating effect. When at last we reached the camp, I was thoroughly tired out. My ankle and wrist as hed, and there was nothing I desired so much as rest. I started at once for my tent, and as I did so Spider rode up to the foreman and asked what orders there were for the day.

"Orders? Why, you little fool, your pony can't bardly stand on his legs, an you'll tumble outer the saddle in a little more," replied the foreman, with a gruffness assumed to cover his approbation of the boy. "Go'n turn your pony out an turn yourself in. Quick, now. 'fore I make you.''

Tumbling on my cot, dressed as I was, I slept for hours. On waking I became conscious of the rumble of distant thunder. The brilliant sunlight, that usually lit the desert until it was nearly as dazzling as snow, had disappeared, leaving the sand cold and gray. thought that dusk had fallen, but my watch told me that the middle of the afternoon had barely passed.

"Reckon we're a-gonter have a little weather," remarked the foreman, who met meas I came out of my tent. "Jus' look over yander." He pointed to the eastern horizon, where masses of dark try business. There is absolutely no clouds, veined here and there with red | doubt as to what it will do, and you are lightning flashes, were piling themselves up into the sky From the north another storm was rising, even more rapidly Except the foreman and the Ballet Girl, none of our men were in the camp Some distance away the cattle, that had been brought in the night before and had failed to wander off to a sufficient distance during the absence of the men, were gathered on the mesa, guarded by Spider and Lee, who were riding around them at a steady lope in opposite directions The two thunder clouds rose higher and higher, spreading around the horizon and narrowing the strip of blue sky that still shone between them "It ain't common ter bave one thunderstorm round here, let alone two,' observed the foreman. "The cattle feels the thunder, too-they're gettin oneasy. Reckon I better go'n give the boys a

The cattle were uneasy, I could see that from where I was standing. They tossed their heads and lowed and moved here and there among themselves. It grew darker each moment and the cattle became more restless. Sometimes, when cattle are in this condition, the sound of the human voice will tend to quiet them. Spider began to sing:

> "Ther was an ol' geezer, An he had a wooden leg, But he never had terbacker, So terback he had ter beg. Another ol' geezer Was as sly as er fox, An he alw's had terbacker In his ol' terbacker box."

Spider's voice rang shrill and clear over the desert, his song measured by the regular hoof beats of his horse. He passed back of the herd, and only an occasional note above the lowing and The air had been still, but now little | CRAIG, The Druggist muttering of the cattle could one hear.

duced to a mere thread; the darkness became thicker; the herd was an indistinct mass, except when the lightning showed everything in an instantaneous photograph The foreman, riding at full speed, had nearly reached the herd; but, as shown by the lightning, his horse seemed to be standing still in an ungainly pose on the desert. Then everything was darker than before.

Once more Spider came to the front of the herd. He had increased the speed before his song went on.

"Jus' stop drinkin whisky An save up yer rocks.

Then you'll alw's have terbacker

In yer ol' terbacker" The two storms met. For a moment there was blinding light, followed by a crash that split the sky. A dozen shadowy horsemen, that seemed to rise out of the ground, charged down on the herd, shouting and waving blankets. I saw six flashes from the foreman's pistol The Ballet Girl, who was standing near me, lurched toward a rifle that leaned against the wheel of the cook

The herd tossed and surged like boil ing water. Spider darted forward to try and hold it. For a moment it hesitated. Then, with a roar of galloping hoofs, it broke and rushed madly away The thieves had stampeded the cattle.

The lightning gave one more vivid flash and ceased. The crash of thunder that followed seemed to tear open the sky, for the rain descended like a liquid curtain that concealed everything.

A Sermon Preached by the Rev. S. J. Crowe.

THE SPIRIT OF THE DAY.

Some Christians Take the Street Car to Hear Their Favorite Preacher and

The Rev. S. J. Crowe, state secretary of the American Sabbath Union, preached on Sunday morning in the Christian church and in the evening in the Reformed church on the subject of "The Church and the Sabbath." The text was from Rev. 1. 10: "I was in the spirit on the Lord's day." His remarks were in part as follows:

God had established the church as the pillar and ground of the truth in order to exhibit His holiness to the world and the effectiveness of the service rendered depends largely on the excellence of the holiness manifested in the practical life of the church. "Be ye holy, for the Lord your God is holy," and "without holiness no man shall see the Lord." Thus it is seen that if we maintain the beauty of holiness we are better able to discharge our duties to mankind at large. The holy law of God was laid up in the ark which stood between the cherubim in the very hely of holies in both tabernacle and temple, and every priest that ministered was under the divine command, "Be ye holy, for I am holy," and every high priest bore upon his mitre the golden plate with the inscription, "Holiness unto the Lord." The "law of the house upon the top of the mountain, the whole limit thereof roundabout, was most holy; behold this is the law of the house." The instruments that do the Lord's work must be in the spirit on the Lord's day by keeping it holy and not paralyze their own efforts by a gross inconsistency. If they would not fail in their work they must practice what they preach and follow after holiness.

The works of the flesh are manifest in reading Sunday papers and wheel riding and in the use of worldly corporations on the Lord's day for ease and carnal pleasure. When a Sabbath committee in Massachusetts was beseiging the legislature of that state to do something to being ex Prosecuting Attorney Pomersecure the better observance of the Sabbath, it was met by the rebuke, "We can do nothing so long as you Christian peo ple patronize Sunday trains and Sunday street cars and Sunday mails and Sunday barber shops and other kindred viola | having been agreed that the one receive tions of Sabbath law." #### A POOR CRUTCH.

It's a Bad Plan to Lean on a Broken Stick.

A man might lean his weak limb on a crutch for years and it would grow no stronger, but the moment he throws away the support and makes the favored member dependent on its own resources. that moment will it begin to gain in strength.

Does it not seem folly then, to take a remedy to assist the digestive organs to digest the food instead of putting them in a condition to do the work unaided?

It is certainly a foolish and dangerous practice to constantly stimulate the digestion by opiates. Instead of making the stomach healthy they make it weak and dependent on a stimulant. At first a small amount will relieve, but as time goes on the dose must be increased until the stomach refuses to assimilate the food without the accustomed stimulant. Dyspepsia is a diseased condition and derangement of the stomach, liver and blood. If these are healthy and the blood pure, the digestive organs will take care of the food as nature intended. This healthy condition cannot be secured by the use of stimulants. It takes a remedy that will go direct to the seat of the disease.

Knox Stomach Tablets are a new combination of unrivaled remedies, scientifically prepared by the best chemists in the world. The per capita circulation of the country was $26.58 on May 1. It was only $21.10 when Bryan was nominated in 1896. The failure of free silver has certainly not checked the circulation.

Farmers in various parts of the country are rejoicing over the extension of rural free delivery as the result of Republican rule in the executive departments and in congress. The present congress has increased the appropriation for this purpose to $1,750,000.

Four years ago Bryan told the people that if they did not get free silver they could not be prosperous. Free silver is now buried out of sight and every section of the country is enjoying a degree of prosperity never before experienced. If Bryan was wrong in his predictions made in 1896 why should he claim any respect for the new ideas which he has built on to the monstrosities of the Chicago platform 9

Another proof that the Filippinos were the first to begin the war in Luzon has been obtained by the Senate in a letter written by Aguinaldo warning his friends in Manila to leave the city before hostilities should be inaugurated by the insurgents. Even before the ratification of the treaty of peace by the American Senate Aguinaldo and his followers were preparing to attack the very forces who fought for and secured their freedom.

Articles jointly produced by American capital and American labor form a large proportion of the total volume of Ameri can exports during the nine months end ing with March, 1900. Our sales to for eign customers during that period reached an aggregate of $1,053,820,680, which is by far the largest amount of exports in any nine months of the nation's history. At this rate the exports of the full fiscal year will reach the enor mous total of over $1,300,000,000.

The sheep census cards of the Ameriwool clause and Dingley tariff with protection on imported wool respectivelyesting responses. Among these the Oregon report is a fair sample of the rest. It shows that there has been a gain of Oregon since 1896 and an increase of 131 per cent in the average value of each sheep in that state.

What is meant by the recent abolishment of transport to Siberia and arbitrary exile without judicial inquiry by the Russian council on the initiative of the Czar, may be partly appreciated from a consideration of the fact that there are 300,000 exiles now in Siberia, half of them without having had a trial. Twothirds of these lead a nomadic life, preying on the country and suffering and inflicting violence and misery. The remainder have settled down to a struggle to earn an honest livelihood.

Andrew Carnegie is quoted in a newspaper interview as saying: "Mr. McKinin his second term than he was during shape and the bowels regular. It is a his first. His instincts are right, and he builder. See that a Priat first, but his promises concerning the vate Revenue Stamp covers the neck of working out of the policies involved in those questions have been made good first and last. The people who know a good thing when they see it will be slow to change such a certainty for doubtful promises. It is claimed that no president in recent years in the closing days of his administration, has had a firmer hold on the confidence of the people than has William McKinley. Thousands of people voted for him four years ago as a protest against the free silver doctrine, but now they will vote for him, as will many who gave their support to Bryan in 1896, upon the ground that prosperity has resulted from the return of the Republican party to power and that four years of the severest test have not found Mr. McKinley wanting in any respect as an executive of the nation.

It was to have been expected that Mr. Clark, of Montana, would precede the formal announcement of his resignation from the Senate by an attempt to defend himself against the charges made by the committee on privileges and elections in its report to the Senate, but the excuses fault-finding with the evidence secured against him will have no effect upon public opinion. Mr. Clark's forced resignation is in accordance with the views of men of every political creed who are convinced that he secured his seat in the United States Senate by dishonest means. The Republicans here are at a loss how to refute the charges made by the Democrats that the Republican party has shown unjust discrimination in the matter of adopting free trade with Hawaii to 15 per cent. of Dingley tariff rates on imports and exports passing between Puerto Rico and the United States.

The answer to the question is so simple and clear that it convicts of the offense of deliberate perversion of fact all free trade newspapers which have sought to show inconsistency and unfairness on the part of the government in its treatment of Hawaii and Puerto Rico respectively. "The distinction between the two cases," says the Economist, "consists in the fact that whereas Puerto Rico is a conquered territory and comes to us without pre-imposed conditions as to any or all of the privileges of citizenship in the great republic, Hawaii comes to us voluntarily seeking annexation under specified conditions. HENDERSON TRIAL.

The Reward Question Discussed New Infirmary Building-The Property of the Pennsylvania Company Appraised Today-An Alliance Case

CANTON, May 16 -Atlee Pomerene,

assistant counsel for the state in the Henderson murder trial, this morning filed a bill of $516.71 for service and expenses in working up the case and during its trial. He was allowed an even $500 by the commissioners. Mr. Pomerene's bill was somewhat lower than Bicyclists Start on a Long that of the attorneys for the defense, as considerable of his work in the case was done during his term as prosecuting attorney. The question of granting a portion of the reward for the conviction of the Hartong murderers to John Washer, the Akron detective, was also dis-Started from the Corner of Main and cussed by the commissioners. The sentiment that now prevails among the members of the latter body is that Washer should receive some remuneration for his services, the only question being the amount of the latter.

The commissioners spent the greater part of Wednesday morning in the discussion of plans for bettering the present crowded condition of the Stark county infirmary. It has practically been decided to erect a cottage, something on the plan of those at the Massil lon state hospital, during the summer, and capable of accommodating one hundred patients. Architect Guy Tilden has already submitted plans for the buildings. The commissioners say that the construction of the cottage will not require a bond issue or an increasing of the tax levy. With the June tax collections, there will be $25,000 to the credit of the building fund, which they say is sufficient. The policy of the board, it is said, will be to continue the erection of new buildings until there will be ample room at the infirmary for the accommodation of all the patients.

Brookfield People Agree Upon a No $6,000 Schoolhouse.

WEST BROOKFIELD, May 15.-D. A. Levers, L. L. Plantz and Peter Wolf, the board of education having control of the West Brookfield schools, called a meeting of citizens Monday evening and laid before the taxpayers the matter of erecting a new schoolhouse. By an almostunanimous vote it was agreed that the district should be bonded and a new building erected on the old site. It will be a structure of four rooms, and will cost between $6 000 and $7,000. This ends a difficulty of several years' standing, and which has been aired in the courts, the town meeting and the newspapers. The former school board favored a plan different from that adopted last night.

Feeling That City Will Have One to Settle Postmaster Contest.

The general feeling in Massillon is that Congressman Tayler, before making a recommendation for the postmastership of Massillon, will refer the matter to the people of the city, and abide by their decision. A special election, it is argued, could be held at small cost. The person receiving the highest number of votes would have the recommendation of the people and should, in turn, then receive the recommendation of Mr. Tayler. The Great Trains of Wagons Are Dragged by Thirty Yoke of Oxen Picturesquely Winding Across the Veldt-The Roads Are Marked by Bleaching Bones.

My first experience of a convoy in the present war was gleaned a short time ago, when we left Modder river for Paardeberg, where General Cronje was on the point of surrendering, says the Bloemfontein correspondent of the London Telegraph. We mustered upward of 50 great, lumbering wagons. each carrying about 7,000 pounds weight of goods and drawn by 30 or more oxen. The goods consisted of coarse biscuits, of which a soldier full rations is allowed one pound per day; potted beef, of which he may take one pound in default of fresh meat; tea, coffee, rum, lime juice, preserved vegetables and medical stores. A large quantity of "Maconochie's rations," a sort of preserved meat and vegetables, which can be either stewed, boiled or baker, according to the soldier's fancy. and which most of the men esteem a delicacy when on active service, was also carried. We commenced the journey at dusk on account of the oxen, who speedily become fatigued by day, and we were escorted by several strong companies. After leaving Modder camp we crossed the river by means of the excellent poutoon bridge erected by the Royal engineers, and on reaching the other side we had to ascend a steep hill littered by bowlders. The Kaffir drivers are provided with huge bamboos, 12 feet long, to which a great thong is attached, and the crack of this formidable whip sounds exactly like the report of a pistol. It was to the accompaniment of a regular fusiliade and much swearing, which was fortunately In a native dialect, that we made the ascent, the first pair of oxen attached to each of the wagons being led through the devious path by a barefooted Kaf-plain the procession was reformed, various sections of wagons being in charge of a mounted conductor-always a white man-who receives from the government a handsome salary for services which our soldiers are not educated to perform. He must ride up and down the caravan, giving orders in the Kaffir or Dutch language to his subordinates, and generally keeping the black men and their oxen thoroughly up to the work. The officials in charge of the entire business are members of the army service corps, and most efficiently have they performed their work in the present campaign so far as the advance upon Bloemfontein is concerned. Doubtless they have not been remiss in other quarters, but I speak only of the work of which I have myself been a witness. I am aware that on several occasions Lord Roberts' men were short of food before they set foot in the capital of the Orange Free State, but this defect was due to the capture of a British convoy at Riet river, when no fewer than 200 wagons, containing rations for five days for 40,000 men, became the temporary loot of the Boers. I say "temporary" advisedly, because since reaching the city I find that we have recovered a very large proportion of these valuable supplies, also the books and ledgers which had been lost.

As soon as we emerged on to the

It was a picturesque spectacle to watch our caravan threading its way over the plain which extends from Modder river in the direction of Jacobsdal, some miles beyond which our troops were for the moment stationed. The sun was setting amid a profusion of richest color, gold and crimson, such as one seldom sees in other climes. Later on, when night came and the cattle were toiling painfully along over rough ground, there were much thunder and sheet lightning, but, fortunately, no rain.

After the heat of the day the air struck one as delightfully cool, albeit the temperature was probably as high as that experienced in England during average summer weather. Every now and then we were compelled to pause owing to some accident to wagon or ox, and neither was of infrequent occurrence during this particular journey. In the former case the damage was promptly made good, and in the latter the animal was outspanned and left to die on the route. So far as horses, mules and oxen are concerned the entire way between Modder river and Bloemfontein has proved a veritable Calvary. In some countries natives direct their course acress the desert by following the bleached benes of man and beast which mark the route, but in the present case there will be no landmarks of that description to assist the traveler. Truth to tell, the stench of the rotting cattle on either side has become so appalling during our hot autumn and the spectacle of birds of prey feasting upon the remains so revolting that Kaffirs have been engaged for the purpose of burying the unfortunate animals. During four hours we plodded painfully along, with nothing to enliven the journey beyond thunder and lightning, the flash of military searchlights proceeding from Kimberley and Modder, the cracking of the great whips and the straining of the huge wagons. It was astonishing to note the ease and placidity with which Tommy Atkins had adapted himself to this novel state of travel. There he sat by the side of the dusky river, shirt sleeves turned up, a pipe in his mouth and a look of positive satisfaction

A FLOATING HOTEL.

Coffee Magnate Arbuckle's Novel Plans For the Public. John R. Arbuckle, the millionaire

coffee merchant, will open a hotel, not on wheels, but on a keel, this summer, says the New York World. It will be literally "washed by the waves," for THE PROSPECT IS PROMISING. it will be affoat. It will combine all the comforts of a great hostelry with the luxury of a yacht.

The big seagoing bark Jacob A. Stambler will be Mr. Arbuckie's floating hotel. She lies at the foot of Van Brunt street, Brooklyn, where carpenters, upholsterers, steamfitters and other mechanics are putting her into shape. Mr. Arbuckle is very fond of yachting and knows its benefits, but his purpose with the Stambler is not entirely philanthropic. Those who will live and voyage on her will have to pay according to the size and position of the staterooms they occupy. There will be 75 handsome staterooms between the Stambler's decks, accommodating 150 people. Some will be rented for $1 a

When summer comes, the Stambler, which is a sister ship to the schoolship St. Mary's, will be moored at a conboard her all summer, or they will be accommodated for one trip. At a stated hour in the evening the bark will go to sea and remain out all night She will return to her pier early in the morning with her guests refreshed, ready for another day's work in the sun baked city.

The hotel on a keel will make longer trips on Sundays and holidays and will splendidly provisioned, but not a drop of liquor will be sold on board. So moisten the throats of the Stambler's 60,000 square Spanish yards, equiva-

An immense rock fell without warning in the Woodland mine at about 9 o'clock Monday morning, striking John McGinnis, inflicting injuries that caused his death five minutes later. Two sons of Mr. McGinnis worked near him. One of the young men had raised his father in his arms, preparatory to removing him to the surface, when, without a word, Mr. McGipnis fell back dead, having never regained consciousness. Operations were immediately suspended at the mine.

Mr. McGinnis was about 67 years old. and leaves a wife and several children. He lived west of the city, between the Woodland mine and East Greenville, and was one of the oldest and best known miners of the Massillon district. Funeral arrangements will be announced later. The body has been removed to the Mc-Ginnis home, where Coroner Schuffele will hold an i quest this afternoon.

The multitudes who use this standard article know that it is many hundred per cent, better than other cements for which similar claims are made, but a great many do not know why. The simple reason is that Mr. Major uses the best materials ever discovered and other manufacturers do not use them, hecause they are too expensive and do them, because they are too expensive and do not allow large profits. Mr. Major tells us that one of the elements of his cement costs $3.75 a pound, and another costs $2.65 a gailon while a large share of the so-called cements and liquid glue upon the market are noth-ing more than sixteen-cent glue, dissolved in water or citric acid, and, in some cases,

DRESS AND FASHION.

MODES GAY OR GRAVE FOR THE MC-MENT AND DAYS TO COME.

Latest Tailor Made Gowns Simula but Effective-Well Built Bodicen New Drest Fabrics—Frilled Elbow Sleeves For This Gowns.

The waist of the moment is the tailor made gown, but it must be smart and dainty, and the two models given carry out this idea well. The knife plaited dress is made in pale rose cloth, with | ble and could not, for the same space, be a tabbed vest of darker rose velvet, the collar and chemisette of white satin. The turquoise blue homespun coat and skirt have facings of white panne braided with black and white cord. There are many gray and black costumes in homespuns, but turquoise blue and rose pink are favorites of the

This season corsage designs surpass in detail and delicacy all that have

SMART BUT SIMPLE TAILOR GOWNS. gone before. They are one and all bewitching, from the simple, perfectly built little shirr of spotted foulard to the extravagantly ephemeral evening model. Of the two useful waists pictured one is in blue taffeta that drops at the waist into an exceptionally shapely corselet of white foulard, patterned with blue and laid in close horizontal stitched tucks. The front is a replica of the back view given. The second is of pink taffeta minutely tucked in groups, divided by a feather stitching in white silk. The top is cut in a small round decollete to display a chemisette and high collar of similarly tucked white taffeta.

Minute stripes and checks of varying size are all to be worn in spring goods, and mohair, with its stiff, firm thread. bids fair to have vogue for hard wear.

Voile has been checked and striped and brocaded after the new order, which is generally in white of a light sketchy pattern and appears to be embroidered. For country wear plain coating, misty checks, suitings and plain cloths will all be worn.

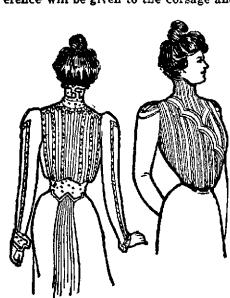

The blending of colors in many of the new checks is remarkable. Brown, is arranged. green and white are combined, orange, green and white, but in everything the pastel colorings assert themselves.

A new silk crape, covered with tiny embroidered pin spots, is likely to be adapted to both evening and morning wear.

A revival of the frilled elbow sleeve will adorn many of the new thin gowns.

The long sleeve will terminate in innumerable frills and ornamental cuff over the hand.

The princess mode will be retained on a few gowns, depicted in a series of tucks from bust to the hips, but a preference will be given to the corsage and skirt, as the waist line is more defined by the quaintly arranged belt or scarf necessitated by the inevitable bolero, which seems to be a living monument of fidelity, since at least a suggestion of its lines figures on many of the most chic bodices. Particularly fascinating little coats or jackets somewhat in bolero effect are this season provided for the days when one first lays off heavier wraps. These are of black taffeta or glace silk and beautifully tailor built in a trim military style, but feminized by vest or tie of fluffy lace.

Spring Renovation.

Willow or rattan chairs that are soiled with age and use can be freshened and tinted anew, according to Good Housekeeping. First wash off every bit of dust in all the interstices. Then with a soft, small, long haired brush int the entire surface with stain of burned sienna or sienna and vandyke brown. Great care must be taken to reach and cover every particle of surface. This treatment suits willow. which will receive stain, but rattan, which is harder than willow, needs first to be painted or enameled. The willow, after the stain is dry, may be varnished like any other wood.

OLD COLONIAL STYLE,

Design For a Simple Yet Beautiful Cottage-Costs $2,000.

The old colonial style of architecture s unsurpassed for simplicity and beauty, for it is founded on principles approaching perfection. This style is especially adapted to cottages 11/2 stories in height. By a careful study of the plans and perspective view here shown it will be seen that all available space has been well Itilized, while the exterior is attractive enough to suit the most fastidious.

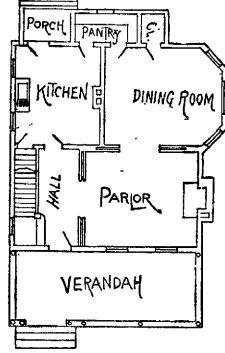

The arrangement of the principal rooms in the first story is convenient and sensiimproved. The staircase hall is of fair size and communicates with the parlor on the right by means of sliding doors. The parlor in the same manner is separated from the dining room, all arranged so that the three tooms may be practically thrown into one when desired.

The chimney which carries off the smoke from the parlor fireplace is built partially on the outside of the house, thus making a picturesque feature of the exterior without taking up any space in the parlor. In the arrangement of the kitchen, pantiy, closets, cellar stairs, ctc., there is nothing especially new. The veranda railing is made close by first studding up and sheathing and shingling the same. The top of this railing is capped by a heavy plank, upon which the columns which support the story above rest, In the second story the floor extends over this veranda, thus giving ample space for three good rooms, hall, bathroom and closets for all. The front and rear chambers and bathroom are lighted

FIRST FLOOR PLAN.

by windows in the gables, and the middle chamber and hall are lighted by large doimer windows. A small attic space for storage is obtained above the second story ceiling and is reached by a stepladder in the hall, in which a scuttle hole

A cellar extends under the main building and has a concrete floor in the usual way. The walls of the foundation are of stone laid up in cement mortar. The veranda piers and chimneys are of hard brick laid with what is called "a water joint." All walls and end ceilings inside are hard finished on one coat of brown mortar. The building is balloon framed and the side walls sheathed with tongued and grooved boards, with roof covered with shingle lath, all papered with waterproof sheathing paper and shingled both on the sides and roof. All exterior finish is of white pine painted in two

The triads and visers, newels, handrail and balustrades of stairs are of oak finished with a wood filler and three coats of varnish rubbed smooth. The floors are of kiln dried yellow pine. All other inside finish, including the doors and sash, is of white pine. The woodwork of the first story and the hall and bathroom in the second story has an oak finish. The woodwork of the other rooms in the second story has two coats of paint. In painting the woodwork of rooms there is a fashion or tendency toward light and delicate colors, which are weak and void of decorative effect. Use strong colors, with draperies and furniture in keeping with the tone, and the effect will be rich and harmonious. In one of the most charming chambers the writer has ever seen the woodwork was painted venetian red. The hardware in the first story is of bronze; in the second story jet knobs and copper bronzed ware. The building is heated by a hot air furnace. This house can be erected complete for $2,000.

Stick to One Style.

It is generally conceded that the most beautiful of all home architecture is the don't set out with a colonial plan and add and trim with gable, turret, eaves, until your house is as bad a sum total as is the man in silk hat, round coat and carpet slippers. The beautiful home must first and of all things be perfect in its congruity.-Exchange.

How the Trouble Between Them Arose and Why the Turks Must Pay $90,000,

BY HOWARD SPENCE SINCLAIR 2

The indemnity claim for $90,000 which the United States government has been pressing Turkey to pay is a demand for damages to the property of American missionary societies in 1895 during the Armenian massacres. It is not a new claim. For five years our ministers to Turkey have been importuning the wily sultan to make reparation. Promises and evasions were the most they could secure.

The damaged property consisted of certain college buildings situated in Karput and Marash. At Karput there were eight buildings comprising the Euphrates college. This institution was founded 15 years ago by Skin Diseases will be sent free upon application. college was established by the special permission of the sultan, and in a treaty with this government he promised it his protection.

Of course the college at Karput was for the benefit of the Christian Armenians of that province and city. It was highly prosperous, and the missionaries were congratulating themselves on the good work they were doing. Then came the outbreak against the Armenians. Encouraged by the sultan the soldiers of the Turkish army, aided by mobs of Turks, entered upon a saturnalia of horrors such as the world has never seen since Nero lighted his gardens with human torches and fed his lions with Chris-and cannon in a small machine shop ing department of a high school. Turkish officials at once placed a cordon Drices. around the school, but found nothing

Then in a search for the weapons they desecrated the Armenian church, and when the people assembled to pray and mourn the desecration they were set upon by the Turkish soldiers, and 12 were killed and more than 300 wound-

This massacre was followed at intervals by others, until a commission renresenting France, Russia and England demanded that certain reforms be granted in six Armenian provinces. These propositions were resisted under various pretexts for four months. at the end of which time the emperor acceded to the spirit of the notes and appointed Shakir Pasha high commissioner to carry them cut. The granting of these concessions marked the beginning of the latest most bloody chapter in Armenian history.

The United States, among other countries, promptly presented indemnity claims. The case of the United States against Turkey was necessarily first submitted to the minister of foreign affairs, then to the council of ministers, who made their report to the sultan, and, finally, it became a question of direct negotiation between the sultan and the minister of the United States.

At an audience on Dec. 8, 1898, the sultan informed our minister he had directed that the claims preferred by the United States should be paid. The claims were examined with great care, and it was agreed that the basis of settlement should be a simple indemnity for the actual value of the property destroyed. There can be no question that to the payment of this the sultan explicitly and unequivocally agreed.

The promise to pay has been twice repeated since December, 1898—the last time just before the departure of Mr. Straus for the United States. The situation, therefore, when our recent demand was made, was practically this: Our minister had succeeded in obtaining judgment upon these claims by confession made by the sultan himself. but the execution remained unsatisfied. There had been a double breach of faith on the part of the sultan, for not only was the money payment evaded, but the promised irade or permit for the reconstruction of the burned buildings had, on one pretext or other, been

This, however, has always been the course pursued by the sultan. Other governments have collected claims against the porte, but this has general. ly been accomplished by a show of ly been accomplished by a show of force. France and Austria have both sent warships into Turkish waters to old colonial. Don't adulterate it though; force. France and Austria have both force the sultan to come to a settle ment. He is like a confirmed debtor who has become hardened to dunning letters and who only pays when the sheriff presents the bill.

UNCLE SAM ST SKIN DISEASES

When the excretory organs fail to carry off the waste material from the system, there is an abnormal accumulation of effete matter which poisons and clogs the blood, and it becomes sour and acid. This poison is carried through the general circulation to all parts of the body, and upon reaching the skin surface there is a redness and eruption, and by certain peculiarities we recognize Eczema, Tetter, Acne, Salt Rheum, Psoriasis, Erysipelas and many other skin troubles, more or less severe. While the skin is the seat of irritation, the real disease is in the blood. Medicated lottons and faithfully powders may allay the itching and burning, but never cure, no matter how long and faithfully continued, and the condition is often aggravated and skin permanently injured by their use.

The disease is more than skin deep; the entire circulation is poisoned.

The many preparations of arsenic, mercury, potash, etc., not only do not cure skin diseases, but soon ruin the digestion and break down the constitution.

S. S. S., nature's own remedy, made of roots, herbs and barks, of great purifying and tonical properties, quickly and effectually cures blood and skin troubles, because it goes direct to the root of the disease and stimulates and restores normal, healthy action to the different organs, cleanses and enriches the blood, and thus relieves the system of all poisonous secretions. S. S. S. cures permanently because it leaves none of the original poison to referment in the blood and cause a fresh attack.

Healthy blood is necessary to preserve that clear, smooth skin and beautiful complexion so much desired by all. S. S. S. can be relied upon with certainty to keep the blood in perfect order. It has been curing blood and skin diseases for half a cen tury; no other medicine can show such a record.

S. S. S. contains no poisonous minerals—is purely vegetable and harmless, Our medical department is in charge of physicians of large experience in treating blood and skin diseases, who will take pleasure in aiding by their advice and direction all who desire it. Write fully and freely about your case; your letters are held in strictest confidence. We make no charge whatever for this service. Our book on Blood and
